London, September 18.
Yesterday arrived the Mail due from Holland.

Hague, September 5.

DURING the Time the King of Great-Britain has been detained here by contrary Winds, it may well be imagined the States General have made use of this Opportunity to concert divers Affairs with his Majesty. On Saturday last the great Pensionary M. Heinsius was a long time alone with his Majesty in his Closer. Nor have the foreign Ministers neglected on this Occasion to confer with his Majesty or his Ministers and with the principal Members of this State. But 'tis not easy to learn what has been treated of: The common Opinion is, that the Affair of the Barrier with the Emperour, is one of the chief things that has been under Deliberation. The four Deputies of this State who are to negotiate with the Count de Konigseck, are not set out yet for Antwerp, and 'tis probable their Instructions will depend in great Part on the Sentiment of the King of Great-Britain on that Subject. In the mean while 'tis said Baron Heems the Emperour's Minister has demanded on the Part of his Court, that their High Mightinesses immediately admit Imperial Troops into those Places of the Spanish Netherlands which they have already offered to give up to his Imperial Majesty: But 'tis believed they will excuse themselves, it being an Affair that cannot be done without the particular and express Consent of the Provinces. Of the many foreign Ministers who have severally had private Audiences of his Majesty, those of Spain staid above half an Hour with him: Most of those Ministers have likewise dined with his Majesty, but the Ambassador of France has not, because 'tis said he claims the Hand or Precedence of his Royal Highness the Prince. The Day after his Arrival here, his Majesty put on Purple-Mourning: All his Habit is of that Colour, even the Crape-Hatband, Gloves, and Shooes. His Majesty will be treated to Day by M. Duyvenvoorde at Scheveling. His Majesty was last Saturday Night at the Assembly in the Earl of Strafford's House, and plaid at Ombre with his Excellency and the Earl of Albemarle; after which there was a Ball. To satisfy the incredible Number of People who came hither from all Parts of this Country to have a Sight of the King, his Majesty has appeared often abroad, either in the Voorhout or in the Road to Scheveling.
